Julia Landon Leadership Magnet Launches Video Productions

One of the best ways to influence the next generation is to give them positive role models and have some fun at the same time. That's just what some Downtown Council members did last week at Julia Landon College Preparatory School.

The middle school is the only Magnet program for Leadership in the State. Each year, students get the chance to practice team-building, and project leadership by creating a video on a topic of global consequence. The exercise requires students to form a production team, select a topic, do the research, write a script and shoot, perform and edit a finished video in competition with the other teams. It is a taste of the challenges small businesses face every day.

Thanks to John Bryan, the Chamber's Area Councils coordinator, the student narrators and actors got a leg up as John conducted a workshop on performance and improvisation. That was followed by Joe Snowberger of PRC Digital Media who ran another workshop showing how the 7 Habits of Successful Teens relates to project management. Steve Kaufmann of SK Public Relations, teamed with Ty Wood, Media Director of the Florida Baptist Convention to help students with storytelling and script writing. And, Ray Hays, of PRC, gave three classes on techniques for shooting and editing video and improving sound recording.

The students will begin to produce their videos over the next several weeks. Then, at about the two-thirds mark in late April, a panel of Downtown Council members will review the works in progress and offer constructive critiques of the pieces. Students will then have an opportunity to incorporate the feedback and lessons learned to improve their videos in the final stages of finishing. The final videos will be submitted to the Downtown Council Panel for final judging in early May. The winner of last year's competition was shown in the student showcase at the Jacksonville Film Festival which the Council also supports.

If you would like to become involved in the Downtown Council's Education Committee, please contact: Cynthia Farmer at cbell@nova.edu, or Ray Hays at RHays@PRCdigital.com. Or, attend any Downtown Council meeting and volunteer.
